

EFG International appoints new Head of Private Banking, Zurich

Zurich, 15 August 2013 – EFG International appoints new Head of Private Banking, Zurich at EFG Bank.

EFG Bank, EFG International's principal Swiss subsidiary, has appointed Stephan Keiser to the position of Head of Private Banking, Zurich, with effect from January 2014. He will report to John Williamson, Group CEO, in the latter's capacity as CEO, EFG Bank.

An experienced private banking professional, Stephan Keiser joins from Bank Vontobel, where he was Head of Private Banking International from 2006, with market responsibility for Latin America, Asia-Pacific, the Middle East and Italy. Prior to this, he was Team Leader, Private Banking Asia-Pacific. Between 1998 and 2003, he worked at Julius Baer, with a number of international postings including to Asia, and his early career was spent at Bank Falck & Co and UBS.

John Williamson, Chief Executive Officer, EFG International:

- "Stephan has spent his career in international private banking, and I am delighted to be welcoming him to EFG. We are committed to growing our business in Switzerland, and this appointment is a clear reflection of that desire. Stephan also brings extensive experience of a number of growth markets where EFG is active and has ambitious plans to expand. I look forward to working with him to deliver our objective of controlled, profitable growth."

Stephan Keiser, Head of Private Banking, Zurich designate, EFG Bank:

- "I am excited to be joining EFG, given its dynamic track record, and a particular attraction to me was its clear focus on private banking. I look forward to helping EFG to develop its business in Zurich, as well as in high-growth regions where I have first-hand experience, including Latin America, Asia-Pacific and the Middle East."
